

Yājñavalkya (II)—a pupil of Vaiśampāyana and son of Devarāta (Brahmarāta Vi. P.) quarrelled with his guru and vomited the Yajus (s.v.) he learnt; propitiated the Sun god to get Chandas unknown to his guru. Pleased with him the Sun god instructed him in Vājasenyastas (Yajus ayātayāma, Vi. P.); in the form of a horse;¹ a Śrutarṣi; one of the madhyamādhvaryus; in charge of a śākhā in the Ṛg Veda; recipient of Janaka's present in a contest for great learning;² an Ekārṣeya.³

¹ Bhā. XII. 6. 62-74; Br. II. 35. 9-30; Vi. III. Ch. 5 whole; Vā. 61. 17-19, 21. ² Br. II. 32. 3 and 16, 34. 27, 45-68. ³ M. 198. 4; 200. 6.

Yājñavalkya (III)—(Kauśalya) learnt yoga from Hiraṇyanābha; siddha; disciple of Pausyañji.

Bhā. IX. 12. 4; VI. 15. 13; Br. III. 63. 208; Vi. IV. 4. 107.

Yājñavalkya (IV)—a sage who came to see Kṛṣṇa at Syamantapañcaka.

Bhā. X. 84. 5.

Yājñavalkya (V)—as a contemporary of Kalki;¹ will precede Kalki.²

¹ Br. III. 73. 105. ² M. 47. 249; 192. 10.

Yājñavalkya (VI)—a son of Brahmavāha, who won the prize for learning in Janaka's (s.v.) hall of sacrifice.

Vā. 60. 41.

Yājñavalkya (VII)—disqualified;¹ learnt the yoga of Vasiṣṭha;² purohita of Kalki.³

¹ Vā. 61. 1, 6. ² Ib. 88. 208. ³ Ib. 98. 104.
P. 4