

Lubdhaka—a companion of Puramjana; allegorically pāyu.

Bhā. IV. 25. 53; 29. 15.

Lekhas (I)—eight groups of Gods of the Cākṣuṣa epoch;¹ Manojava, Praghāsa, Pracetas, Vāta, Dhruvakṣiti, Adbhuta, Avana and Brhaspati.²

¹ Br. II. 36. 67, 76; M. 9. 23; Vi. III. 1. 27. ² Vā. 62. 63-4.

Lekhas (II)—a class of Pitṛs propitiated on every New Moon day.

Vā. 56. 21.

Lekhaka—a scribe who is an expert in all languages and who is versed in all Śāstras; characteristics of writing; a scribe must be able to reproduce in a few sentences much that is spoken.

M. 215. 26-8.

Lekhā (I)—the sun standing above this, results in the end of the five year Yuga.

M. 124. 64; 141. 35.

Lekhā (II)—of the earth; on account of this the sun is seen above though at a height of 1000 Yojanas.

Vā. 50. 110.

Lekhinī—the Goddess from the back part of Nṛsimha; follower of Vāgīśi.

M. 179. 68.

Lelihānā—a mind-born mother.

M. 179. 18.

Lelihānatīrtham—in Gayā near Bharatāśrama.

Vā. 112. 24