

Indrasena (iv)—previously Bali. Received Kṛṣṇa and Rāma with due honours to his region Sutala, and praised their glory; gave them back their brothers killed by Kamsa.

Bhā. X. 85. 35-46, 52.

Indrasena (v)—a son of Brahmiṣṭha and father of Vindhyāśva.

M. 50. 6.

Indrasenā—the wife of Mudgola and mother of Badhyaśva.

Vā. 99. 200.

Indrasprg—a son of Rṣabha and Jayanti.

Bhā. V. 4. 10.

Indrāṇī (i)—sat with Indra in his sabhā.¹ Punished Nahuṣa for his overweening pride.² Was the mother of Jayanta and two other sons.³ Welcomed Kṛṣṇa and Satyabhāmā to Amarāvati. Satyabhāmā aggrieved against her and thought her proud of her riches and of her Lord's prowess.⁴ A śakti.⁵

¹ Bhā. VI. 7. 6. ² Ib. IX. 18. 3; VI. 13. 16. ³ Ib. VI. 18. 7. ⁴ Ib. X. 59. 38; [65 (V) 5], [28]; [67 (V) 19]. ⁵ Br. IV. 44. 84, 111.

Indrāṇī (ii)—The temple of—in Vidarbha. This was visited by Rukmiṇī on the day prior to her marriage for worship. Indrāṇī and Indra were kuladevatas of Vidarbhas.¹ Image of.²

¹ Bhā. X. 53. 49 [1 & 2], and 50. ² M. 13. 52; 260. 70; 261. 31.

Indrāyudha—the rainbow appearing in cloudless sky or at night, a bad sign for a state.

M. 233. 7.