

Bhṛtī—one of the ten branches of the Rohita group of devas.

Vā. 100. 90.

Bhṛtyas—servants engaged for service, these who do not do properly or neglect, are liable to be punished with a fine of 8 Kṛṣṇalas besides being deprived of their wages;¹ conduct of, reported by cāras;² not loyal in the kaliyuga.³

¹ M. 227. 9. ² Ib. 215. 89; Vā. 110. 54. ³ Ib. 58. 42.

Bhṛśa—to be worshipped in house-building, with fish.

M. 253. 24; 268. 12.

Bhṛśā—a queen of Uśinara and mother of Nṛga.

M. 48. 16-17.

Bhṛśī—a Dānava.

Br. III. 6. 5.

Bhetta—a Vaikunṭha God.

Br. II. 36. 57.

Bheda (I)—one of the upāyas; to be used against the wicked, the insolent and the proud; makes the enemy afraid of himself and brings him under his control; this upāya is praised by statesmen; the king must endeavour to practise this against the enemy through his cognates.

M. 222. 2; 223. 1, 4, 15.